International Students

Admission Requirements

- Official Transcripts of secondary school or university diploma
- Proof of English Proficiency. To see all options, go to hpu.edu/engrequirement

Academic Calendar

The academic year consists of two 16-week semesters – a Fall semester commencing mid-August and ending in December, and a Spring semester starting in mid-January and ending in May. You can view this year's semester dates on hpu.edu/academiccalendar

Rolling Admissions

There are no set deadlines for admissions at HPU. However, we do recommend that international students apply for the Fall semester by July 1, and for the Spring entry term by December 1. This allows adequate time for students to register for classes, and housing, and arrange their visas.

HPU combines the excitement of an urban downtown campus with the serenity of a campus set in the green foothills of O'ahu's Ko'olau mountains, and its aquaculture research facility, Oceanic Institute, borders the ocean. The main campus is located in Downtown Honolulu, the business and financial center of the Pacific, and it is home to the College of Business, College of Liberal Arts and College of Health and Society.

“ I wonder if my words can truly describe my experience while living in Hawaii & attending HPU. I left India as a typical city kid and came back as a globally aware citizen of the world. HPU is unique in its diversely rich international student environment, which still plays a monumental role in my ability to communicate with & relate to other nationalities. Hawaii is a dreamscape, beautiful beyond any conceivable description & Honolulu has a blend of sublime serenity, as well as all the perks of a modern-day city, making HPU an ideal choice for those who love nature & seek a healthy, active lifestyle while pursuing their higher education goals. ”
